1.0 INTRODUCTION

- 1.1 Development administration demands building of a new professionalism by today's civil servants at all levels. Development, both as a goal and as an action programme, has passed through a number of orientations, strategies and methodologies. The goals of development and the means of attaining it, however, remain elusive and the search for an agreed paradigm still continues. The entire process of development administration necessitates acquisition of a set of new skills and internalisation of a cluster of new values in tune with the needs of democratic administration, market economy and globalisation. All these will help in building administrative capability that is in short supply in the developing countries including Bangladesh.
- 1.2 The role of mid-level administrators in formulating and executing development policies is well recognized. As they are drawn from diverse disciplines, the need to give them well-knit knowledge and understanding in various dimensions of development and identifying means of accomplishing goals of development is deemed essential. Apart from training sessions, a forum is necessary to exchange individual knowledge and experiences acquired by them on development issues. In the face of this reality the 37th Advanced Course on Administration and Development (ACAD) has been designed to provide the mid-level administrators up to date knowledge on administration and development. This course provides opportunity for free discussion among the participants, where innovative strategies, insights and initiatives would evolve from sharing ideas, views, perceptions and experiences.

2.0 BPATC AND ITS ROLE

- 2.1 The Government of Bangladesh has been showing keen interest in the development of the potential of the officials at all levels. Government's concern for more intensified and integrated training for public servants has been reflected in the setting up of the Bangladesh Public Administration Training Centre (BPATC), Savar, Dhaka by merging the former Bangladesh Administrative Staff College (BASC), National Institute of Public Administration (NIPA), Civil Officers' Training Academy (COTA) and the Staff Training Institute (STI). Foundation stone of the Centre was laid in December, 1981 and the Centre began functioning from April 28, 1984 as an autonomous body with a Rector as its Head.
- 2.2 The Centre consists of 5 divisions viz. (i) Programmes and Studies, (ii) Management and Public Administration, (iii) Development and Economics, (iv) Research and Consultancy, and (v) Project. Each division is headed by a Member Directing Staff, who is an officer with the status of a joint secretary to the Government. The divisions are further sub-divided into departments and sections that are staffed by Directors and other support employees.
- 2.3 The BPATC has been playing a leading role in the field of training in public administration and allied fields and has inherited a rich legacy of administrative training experience in the country. This mid-level course has been particularly designed to develop overall efficiency of the Deputy Secretaries to the Government and of their equivalents.
